AN UNFORTUNATE CONDITION

With two of our industries in town running at full capacity night and day, employing in the neighborhood of three hundred hands, and with other industries running on a smaller scale, making in all a very substantial monthly pay roll, it has often occurred to The Review that business in all lines was not as brisk as it should be. For this reason we have taken the trouble to do a little bit of investigating. The result, although not surprising, under the circumstances, has been a little bit disappointing. We find a large percentage of the men employed in the different industries are foreigners, who are either single men or married men who have their wives and families living in foreign countries. They latch on, and are living in shacks, consequently one would hardly know they were in town as least so far as their being any good to the town commercially is concerned.

As most of our white men, both married and single, are enlisted, this state of affairs is only to be expected, but it does seem too bad that while the brown and black and blood of our country's best is being sacrificed on the altar of justice and honor, the brothers and fathers and sons of the men whose bullets they are facing, are living in a state of peace and plenty here in Canada.

What is the remedy? There is none. This war must be fought through to a successful finish in order that the world may know that right might shall rule the day. In the doing of this the wheels of industry must be kept in motion throughout the Empire, and our brave lads cannot be in two places at once.

Looking at the situation from a selfish standpoint, Redcliff is indeed suffering its proportionate share because of the war. If conditions were normal if all white labor were employed in our industries now in operation, and if the men employed had their wives and families here, we would have a population of at least two thousand instead of only about fourteen hundred. Business in all lines would be brisker and the town would be passing through one of the most prosperous stages of its existence.

But war is hell and we are only contributing our share to the unparalleled state through which the whole world is passing.

A WARNING

By the several drowning accidents already reported we are reminded that the swimming season is again with us, and we are again called upon to remind our readers of the treacherousness of our western rivers and streams. Those who have lived in the west for any length of time know of these streams and know that this town has almost annually contributed its share of victims. They should need no further warning. But it is to war newcomers who might be tempted to take a plunge during the hot Alberta weather that this is written. Don't think that because you are a good swimmer you can defy these treacherous streams. In most drowning accidents in this district it has been the good swimmers who got under the venturesome that went under.

All our western rivers are fed from mountain streams and are consequently full of cold under currents, and there is no doubt it is these which catch the majority of swimmers and take them under.

In going swimming in this country it is well to remember the old saying: "Hang your clothes on a hickory limb, but don't go near the water."

BOYS AND GIRLS AS WORKERS

"Every one at work" is the call during war time. The more men recruited the greater the responsibility on those left at home. Men who have worked hard and saved some money so as to spend their old age in comfort will be turning in again to help their sons on the farms or will step in to take the places of sons who have joined the colors. Women, the busiest of whom seem always able to do something more, will be dividing their time between household duties and outdoor work. Young men from the farm will no doubt cut short their term at school or college and lend a hand at spring work and stay with the farm operations until the crops are harvested. Large numbers of soldiers will get temporary leave. Are there any others who can lend a hand in producing? What about the boys and girls who have been receiving instruction in school gardening? A pamphlet just issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture sets forth in illustrated and descriptive form how school garden work has been carried on in all the provinces of Canada.

What are the boys and girls doing now? What is their education and training worth? Here is their opportunity to demonstrate at home in the most practical manner what they have been taught at school. The boys and girls of Canada, thousands in number, should be able to do their bit in conducting small gardens at home. Boys' and girls' patriotic gardens should produce tons upon tons of fresh vegetables for their home supply, and they can readily learn how to put up the surplus for winter use. What pleasure they can get this year in growing food in the home garden, and thus helping their fathers and mothers! Production along this line is patriotism.

Then what about waste material? Old paper and rags are needed in our industries, so are metals and bottles and rubber and a score of other things. The country needs material and cannot afford to have waste. The saving and use of waste are as important as production. Boys and girls can make money out of scrap.

The soldiers at the front would like to get news from home. Boys and girls can send them some papers. Wrap up the papers and mail them to the Canadian Red Cross, 14 Cockspur Street, London, S.W., England.

DOING THEIR BIT

Reports coming in during the past few weeks tell of further honor heaped on the heads of Canadian soldiers now at the front, and add but another chapter to their early triumphs and immortal gallantry.

This time the lads from the Dominion did even better than standing their ground and holding back the fierce German avalanche. They went forward in the face of terrific shelling and recaptured a front of 1,500 yards extending from south of Sanctuaries Wood to the north of Hillgo. In addition they inflicted heavy losses on the foe and gathered in a batch of Teutons who had escaped their fire.

The recent battles in which the Canadians fought heroically and lost heavily, were the bloodiest of the year.

The Germans attacked with a large force, hoping to find easier of achievement against the young fellows from Canada than had proved impossible against the hardened veterans of Verdun. The Canadians were under shell fire from half past eight o'clock in the morning until eleven at night. They stood in their trenches unflinchingly all day, and at some points these trenches were blasted to nothingness. The Canadian losses ran into thousands, but the Canadian gains were immense. Another onrush of the Huns toward Calais was effectually stopped, and the way paved for the British advance chronicled this week.

Canada lost nearly 300 officers in this latest Ypres engagement. Heroism as glorious as any recorded in the history of war marked its progress, men with lion hearts and pulses of steel rushing forward to certain death by the hundreds. Most of these were recently recruited from the farm, the shop, the bank, the office. They left the desk, counter, plow and forge to indicate British honor and justice in the face of German treachery and oppression. They gave "the last full measure of devotion" eagerly to the Union Jack, emblem beloved from their childhood, and their memory is beautiful to their countrymen.

At home, the bereaved fathers and mothers are bowed in grief, but exultant in the knowledge of high duty nobly done. If the Kaiser's eagle eye could see far enough it might observe these mourners, not wasting time in useless weeping, but busy with the drilling of new soldiers to take the places of dead heroes.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The announcement made by Councillor Ireland at the last meeting of the council to the effect that he would in all probability tender his resignation in the next few weeks, will be a distinct disappointment to a large percentage of the ratepayers.

Ever since his election to the council Mr. Ireland has been one of its most active members. He has always taken a firm stand on all matters coming before the board, regardless of what corn he was trading on, and in most cases he has acted in the best interests of the town as a whole. The Review will be very sorry indeed if Mr. Ireland's plans will mean his resigning from the council, and still more sorry if they should mean his removal as a citizen.

Redcliff is gradually getting back into its old time swing as a town of industries and employment of labor. This week the rolling mills started operating another furnace, which will ultimately mean the employment of from twenty to twenty-five more men. The brick and coal plant is gradually adding to its staff, and next week the pressed brick plant will open up with a staff of at least twenty-five men. On the whole prospects are most promising for a busy summer and fall.

The decision of the council at its last meeting to reconsider the matter of raising salaries of town officials will be good news to the ratepayers. The outcome of their deliberations will be still better news, as the proposed raising against which the most complaints are made are not to be given.

All Canadians will regret it hear the news that His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, who has filled the post of governor-general of this Dominion for close to five years is to leave Canada. Since coming here the Duke and Duchess have endeavored themselves to the hearts of the people of Canada, not only because the Duke is the only living son of our late beloved Queen Victoria, but because he is a man. These two words, "a man" sum up in a large measure the secret of his popularity.

U. S. Demands

A demand for the immediate release of the United States soldiers taken prisoners at Carrizal, together with a stern notification that the United States expects an early statement of the purpose of the Carrizal government, was telegraphed to Mexico City by the United States.

The military situation in the United States was talked over at the White House. After the conference, which lasted more than an hour, Senator Stone said the situation "was exceedingly acute." President Wilson had felt it necessary to acquaint congress with the state of affairs and the action taken through the foreign affairs committee. It was intimated that he might desire to address a joint committee of the house in a day or two, but would not take this final step until the Mexican government had been given an opportunity to reply.

Russians Conquer Whole of Bukovina

The Russians have conquered the whole of the Austrian crown land of Bukovina, and the Austro-Hungarians are making their way toward the Carpathian Passes. Kimpulung, in the southern part of Bukovina, has been captured by the Russians, and the Austrians have fallen back between that town and Jockimov, to the northwest have evacuated the heights south of Betromet and Ustic.

Along the river Pruth, in their drive toward Kolomea, the Russians have captured Wilmshof and west of Dubno. Heavy fighting continues throughout this entire region.

In Volynia, Petrograd reports the capture of a redoubt near Czartorysk, the repulse of attacks southwest of Lublin, and an advance toward Radziwille, while Berlin reports the putting down of Russian attacks to the east of Vladimir-Volynsk and west of Dubno. Heavy fighting continues throughout this entire region.

May Go Hard on The Revenues

Dominion revenues will be materially affected by the provinces going dry. When the war broke out the liquor traffic by way of increased revenue rates, was one of the first to be attacked. From the suppression of the extra excise about $9,000,000 a year has come in additional revenue. The latter, however, dependent upon production and importation and these in turn are governed by consumption. Consequently with every province going dry and British Columbia dry or in prospect of being dry this year the federal revenue will fall off.

It will not be severely felt, because the effect of the prohibition wave was foreseen and in the working out of the new budget this year provision was made for revenues from other sources sufficient to compensate for the anticipated falling off in excise.

Is Slated For An Irish Position

His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught may go from his Canadian post to Ireland to succeed royal authority there. The duke has begun a farewell inspection tour of Canadian units training for overseas. He will leave Canada for Britain in October, going straight to the seat of government, London.

The Imperial legislation necessary to establish representative government in the southern counties of Ireland under the Lloyd George scheme of home rule will be through parliament about the date the Duke of Connaught is slated to land on the other side. Private advice which reaches Canada intimates that the proclamation of home rule for all Ireland, outside the six Ulster counties, will be accompanied by the announcement that the Duke of Connaught, uncle of King George, will be the representative of royal authority in the self-governing portion of Ireland.

Two Austrian transports have been sunk in the harbor of Durazzo by the Italians. The transports were loaded with troops, arms and ammunition.

Says Emperor Has Done Some Good

M. Alexander Potrepoff, vice president of the Russian duma, has been visiting in England and during his stay there was interviewed on various subjects. In discussing the war and its effects he voiced the following thought, which is well worth thinking over.

"The Emperor William has done something wonderful. He has united all parties; united the whole wide world in hatred against aggressive militarism, and by necessity and justice. All hatred has been given to him, and for all civilized countries there remains only one warm feeling—that of friendship."

The future is very dark says the official economic weekly of northwest Germany, in reviewing the agricultural and cattle breeding situation.

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt definitely refused the nomination of the Progressives for president, and in a letter to the Bull Moose national committee urged their support of Charles Evans Hughes, the Republican nominee.

Let simmer one and one-half hours.

U. S. Sees Nothing to Warrant Arbitration

Efforts toward anti-American sentiment in the Mexican crisis, favored by Carranza officials, collapsed with each having reached the stage of a formal proposal to the United States. It was made plain by Secretary of State Lansing to Ignacio Calderon, minister of Bolivia, who called with the intention of asking whether the United States would entertain an offer of the services of its southern neighbors to aid in avoiding war, that the Washington government sees nothing in the situation that would warrant arbitration proceedings. Mr. Lansing talked with the minister for half an hour, and in understanding to have told him that the same for the grave outlook rested squarely upon General Carranza. The attitude of the United States was fully outlined that Mr. Calderon did not mention directly the original purpose of his visit.

MEN, WOMEN, CHILDREN TO WORK IN HARVEST FIELDS

The Hungarian agricultural authorities have decided upon unusual and radical measures to harvest the 1916 crops in the speediest possible manner. The municipal local authorities throughout the country have been empowered to requisition for harvesting purposes the services of every man, woman and child at home not serving the state in some indispensable way at fixed wages. Prisoners of war working in non-military concerns also have been requisitioned for the harvesting.

An official casualty list covering all the British forces, gives the number of officers at 333, of whom 115 were killed and 222 were wounded, of whom 1,487 were killed. This makes a total number of casualties for the past week 3,650, of whom 1,602 were killed.

Wife (telling): "You needn't speak to me for a month!"

Husband: "Then you expect to have finished talking by that time?"

"Truth," said the ready-made philosopher, "is stranger than fiction."

"Yes," replied the cynic, "but it suffers from the disadvantage of seldom being so well expressed."

All That Mattered

"Victor: 'The little man gets like his father, doesn't he, Maggie?'"

Mrs. Maggie: "That don't matter, sir, long as he's 'ealthy.'"

Bestest Baked Beans

She: "You may see papa?"

He: "Then you think he'll consent?"

She: "I couldn't say, but I believe he is looking for a junior clerk with the qualifications you mention."

Baked Bananas

Remove peeling, dip in lemon juice, roll in fine sifted crumbs. Bake 15 minutes in hot oven. Serve with whipped cream, sweetened or flavored to taste. One may have a banana to like the flavor of baked bananas.

TEETH AND HEALTH

Preserve Disposed Teeth and Gums; Thus Benefit Your Health

If people would really keep their teeth clean and have them examined regularly by a dentist twice a year then they would have little trouble with their teeth. But most people only keep their teeth half clean and would be in a dot with toothache drives them and so their teeth decay and although most people don't realize that their general health is seriously impaired.

The most serious result of neglect of one's teeth is a disease called pyorrhea—which causes the teeth to become loosened from the gums which are inflamed and sore. Unless treated in time people suffering from this disease will lose their teeth entirely.

People afflicted with this disease also suffer from stomach trouble for their gums and teeth are so sore that to chew the food well is practically impossible. Added to this the system is apt to be more or less poisoned by the discharges from the inflamed gums.

By having the teeth examined frequently the dentist can detect signs of pyorrhea. In time to treat the teeth and gums and to check the disease, but where pyorrhea is allowed to go unchecked it has reached as far as it can go.

Canadian Casualties Are Creeping Daily

Approximately 10,000 names have appeared in the casualty lists issued by the Militia Department since the outbreak of the first attack on the Ypres salient on June 2. As approximately 25,000 casualties have been reported, this means that in many of the Canadian regiments of the first Canadian contingent which sailed from Quebec in the latter part of October, 1914. It is likely the list will continue to be heavy for a few days yet and that before all the names of those who suffered in the recent German offensive and the successful Canadian counter-attacks are in, they will exceed 12,000. It is also expected that as long as the Canadians hold Ypres salient, under ordinary conditions of trench warfare, the casualties will run from one hundred to two hundred per day.

Canadians Are Now Consolidating Positions

The following communication has been received at Ottawa from the Canadian general representative at the front:

The consolidation of the positions recaptured on the morning of June 12 was carried out by our troops during the past week under difficult and trying conditions. Our original lines were found practically obliterated. The ground has been churned into a sea of mud. The remains of former trenches and shell holes were all deep in water. The weather continued cold and wet.

Under a constant, and at times intense, bombardment by the enemy new trenches and works had to be constructed. All our battalions engaged in this arduous duty displayed the greatest courage and endurance. Throughout they received ample assistance from our pioneers and engineers.

As the result of indefatigable labor, our hold on all essential points was confirmed and a strong defensive system built.

No further counter attacks were delivered by the enemy. From time to time the volume and concentration of his shell fire suggested preparation for an assault, but the prompt and vigorous repatriation of our artillery on these occasions checked any such attempt.

Hon. Mr. Roche, minister of the interior, will leave for the Yukon Friday next on ministerial business. It is the first time the minister has visited the Yukon.

Prohibition Goes

Into Effect July 1st

The liquor act will come into effect on July 1, which is next Saturday. On and after that date it will be illegal for any household to have in his home more than one quart of spirits or two gallons of malt liquor beer.

On that day the old order of licensed bars will be wiped out, and the only places where one can obtain liquor in the province will be through the greatly restricted channels of the liquor act.

The government has appointed two vendors, one for southern Alberta, and one for the north. The southern official will make Calgary his chief depot, while Edmonton will be the centre of the government trade in liquor in the north.
